

Technology as a learning aid for cabin and flight crew

Hulya Arinik, Instructor - Turkish Aviation Academy

Finding material that can be directly used for teaching 'language' in an aviation classroom can be difficult.

Through my workshop I wanted to demonstrate that basically any material (visual, printed, etc.) written within an aviation context can be applied and used as a resource in the Aviation English classroom. As long as the content is relevant to aviation and (the daily operations) the material can be adapted to a language class even though the initial intended target audience were not cabin or cockpit crew.
